NUMBER 15

New Year Greeting.

The icy breeze
Of the Northern seas
Comes over us with a shout,
And its voice is clear
On this young New Year
As it circles us round-about.

We have journeyed along,
With frost and song,
Through the days now past and gone;
So we'll give a sigh
For the time gone by
And a health to the New Year born.

But in looking back
O'er the beaten track
And the devious winding route,
In our sensitive mind
Some sorrows we find
Have followed us round-about.

For sometimes clouds
With their gloomy shrouds
Draped the silv'ry crested moon;
And our flowers would fade
In the darksome shade,
And it was not always June.

There were moments of bliss,
And a lover's kiss,
And a mother's earnest prayer;
But our hopes oft waned,
And our hearts were pained
With sorrows that lingered there.

So we'll bury the past
In a sepulchre fast,
As we list to the school-boys shout,
And we'll give a cheer
To the glad New Year
That circles us round-about.

We'll sing of the blooms,
And the sweet perfumes
Of the summer days to come;
And of better times
In our fruitful climes,
And of Labor's busy hum.

Of valleys that gleam
Where a silvery stream
Glides murmuring in and out;
Of the locked-up stores,
And the hidden ores,
We will tell in our ROUNDABOUT.

Of the wealth untold,
That, like shining gold,
Lies buried vast and deep;
While our sons sit still
On valley and hill,
In a death-like, stupid sleep.

Kentucky, awake!
Like a frozen snake
Ye lie, or a drunken lout.
Awake! arise!
Win the golden prize
That is scattered all round-about.

Don't leave those hills
That your treasure fills
To go to an unknown land;
There are pleasures and health
And untold wealth
By those magical breezes fanned.

Let labor and song
Cheer you all day long,
And this sluggish apathy rout;
And the bright New Year
Will our spirits cheer
As it circles us round-about.

Mr. W. D. Graves, Deputy County Clerk, has bought one of the old barracks, in South Frankfort, and having converted it into a dwelling, has removed his family to it.

The stockholders of the Kentucky Industrial Association will meet at the courthouse in this city at 2 o'clock, p. m., next Monday, at which time the committee appointed at the last meeting will submit a report in reference to the continuance of the fair. Let every stockholder be present, determined to continue the fair at any cost.

While some tinniers were at work on the roof of the State House Tuesday, little Pat. McDonald, Mack, Phythian, and other boys of their size, ascended to the roof without the knowledge of any grown persons, and while there Pat. McDonald slipped, the roof being wet, and barely escaped falling over the eaves. They were at once ordered down, and while making the descent down some very narrow, steep stairs, Mack, Phythian lost his footing, and fell a distance of about twenty feet, striking on the upper part of his forehead. His companions thought he was killed, as, indeed, he was nearly so for a few minutes, and ran hastily for Dr. Rodman, who lost no time in getting to the wounded boy. Upon examination he found that no bones were broken, but that a quantity of bruised blood was accumulating at the injured part. The place was skillfully opened with a pocket knife, and in a short time Mack. was able to go home.

A Week of Prayer.

The Baptist, Christian, Methodist, and Presbyterian churches will observe the "week of prayer" in suitable united services, to be held each night during next week, at the Presbyterian Church, commencing promptly at 7 o'clock. In accordance with the recommendation of the American Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, the following programme of services will be followed:

Monday, January 5—Thanksgivings for the blessings of the past year, and prayer for their continuance. Rev. Mr. Darsie to conduct the meeting.

Tuesday, January 6th—Confession of sin and humiliation before God. Rev. Mr. Lewis to conduct the meeting.

Wednesday, January 7th—Prayer for the Church of Christ, its ministers, its growth in grace and its enlargement, and for revivals of religion throughout our country. Rev. Mr. Miller to conduct the meeting.

Thursday, January 8th—Prayer for Christian education; for the family and institutions of learning; for Sunday-schools and Christian associations. Rev. Mr. Pugh to conduct the meeting.

Friday, January 9th—Prayer for nations, rulers and people; for peace and religious liberty. Rev. Mr. Smith to conduct the meeting.

Saturday, January 10th—Prayer for Home and Foreign Missions; for the outpouring of the Spirit upon all flesh, and the conversion of the world. Rev. Mr. Darsie to conduct the meeting.

All are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

The City Council will elect city officers next Tuesday night to serve the ensuing year.

Mr. S. Dunlap's black horse took fright at some object near Williams' corner, South Frankfort, Tuesday afternoon, and ran away with the buggy to which he was attached, tearing it to pieces and depositing parts of it in several localities. A little boy was the only occupant of the buggy, and escaped unharmed.

The heads of a buffalo, elk, and antelope have been received by Mr. Jas. M. Todd this week from the far West. The elk head is the finest specimen ever seen in this country. The antlers have seven prongs on each side, measuring a little over four feet in length, and three and a half feet apart at the widest point. They can be seen at Mr. Todd's grocery.

The following officers were elected by Capital Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., Monday night, for the ensuing six months:

N. F. Richardson, N. G.
C. A. Nelson, V. G.
W. S. Dehoney, Sec.
Geo. W. Gwin, Treas.
Alex. McEwan, Host.

Officers of Oriental Encampment, No. 4, I. O. O. F. were elected last meeting night as follows:

FRANKFORT, JANUARY 3, 1880.

Temperance meeting at the court-house to-night, a 7 o'clock. Good speakers from a distance are in the city, some of whom will be present. Good speaking and a rousing meeting. Let everybody turn out.

A Distressing Accident.

A little before 10 o'clock Thursday morning an accident happened at the residence of Capt. John Walcutt, near this city, which resulted in the death of Ed. Burns, colored, who was in the employ of Capt. Walcutt. The facts are these:

Dellie Walcutt, son of Capt. Jno. Walcutt, aged twelve years, went into the hall adjoining the dining room for the purpose of ordering his breakfast, and as he entered, Ed. Burns also came into the hall, but by another door, walking up to the stove, near which he took his stand. Dellie playfully pointed his rifle at Burns, and, being ignorant of the fact that it was loaded, said, "look Ed." Almost immediately he said, "look again, Ed," and at the same instant the fatal shot was fired, and Ed. Burns fell to the floor, without a word or a groan, and was a corpse. Dellie immediately dropped the rifle and cried, "oh! I've shot him," and fled up stairs to his mother, frightened and pained almost beyond endurance.

The ball that did such frightful work struck Burns on the right side of the nose and penetrated the brain, causing instant death. Lizzie Hickman, colored, was the only witness of the terrible tragedy, and she asserts that Dellie and Burns were on the best of terms, that Dellie spoke playfully to Burns just before and as he fired the shot, that he was not aware the gun was loaded, and that the killing was altogether accidental.

Squire Gwin went out to Capt. Walcutt's and held a coroner's inquest, having summoned a jury for that purpose. After a full and searching examination of the witnesses they returned the following verdict, acquitting Dellie of any intention of doing wrong:

Ed. Burns, colored, came to his death on the first day of January, 1880, by a gunshot, the gun being in the hands of Delano B. Walcutt, and that the discharge of the gun was unintentional and purely accidental.

Capt. Walcutt and his wife, as well as Dellie, were almost overcome with grief and regret at the sad beginning, to them, of the new year. Their distress is very great, and they have the sympathy of many here who also feel a genuine regret that one so young and promising should have met thus early with an accident that may forever cloud his life, and cause so much of sorrow to his doting parents. While it is a severe lesson, it is hoped that it may do him and others good by being a reminder of the danger of handling firearms, even though they are believed to be unloaded.

Mr. Ben. Deering announces that some time prior to the first of February he will commence the publication of a semi-weekly newspaper in this city. It will be a paper for all classes, full of local and general news an advocate of Democratic principles defending the party against the corruption and evil influence of rings, cliques, combinations, or individuals. It will be independent in all its expressions and views, and neutral in nothing which appertains to the good of society, or the welfare and progress of the people. We are glad of this reinforcement—glad because we know Mr. Deering is an unflinching advocate of the right—and we wish him great prosperity in his new undertaking.

The office of the Commissioner of Agriculture is a place that every person should visit who comes to Frankfort. Col. Bowman, the Commissioner, is always glad to welcome visitors, and will tell them more about the resources and needs of Kentucky in fifteen minutes than can be learned from any other source in a month. His whole heart seems to be in the work of his office and the advancement of the agricultural interests of Kentucky. He was the means of having a number of newspapers in the State offer premiums for the best dozen specimen ears of corn, the lots taking premiums to be forwarded to his office for competition. A person who is not posted would be astonished to see the collection he now has on hand—the finest ever produced in the Blue-Grass State. As soon as the Legislature is thoroughly organized and the Committee on Agriculture appointed, he proposes to have a corn show, at which time he will give five dollars in gold to the exhibitor of the best dozen ears of white corn, and five dollars in gold to the exhibitor of the best dozen ears of yellow or mixed corn. This is the right course to pursue to encourage the farmers to cultivate only the best varieties of this staple, and it will do a world of good if kept up.

Personal.

Miss Rosa Joseph is visiting relatives in Louisville.

Miss Amelia Browder has been visiting friends in Louisville this week.

Mr. F. E. Jouett has been visiting friends in Woodford county this week.

Miss Minnie Lows, of Virginia, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. George Darsie.

Miss Lulu Nuckles returned Wednesday morning from a short visit to Glasgow.

The Misses Owsley and Miss Gess, of Lexington, paid our city a flying visit yesterday.

Mr. Att. Renick, of Denver, Colorado, has been visiting friends in the city this week.

Mr. R. A. Bohannan has been very ill for the past two weeks, being confined to his bed.

Capt. R. S. Cheves has been in the city this week. He is enjoying excellent health and looks well.

Tom Stuart, of the Clark County Democrat, has been dispensing smiles in the city this week.

Charlie Kincaid, of the Anderson News, came down this week to see the Legislature properly organized.

Mr. Frank O'Neil, who has been visiting friends in and near this city, returned to his home in Paris Monday.

C. W. Williams, telephone operator at Lawrenceburg, was in the city Sunday, and says he was sober all day, and wants us to let the people know it.

Col. E. Polk Johnson, of the Kentucky Intelligencer, Bowling Green, has been meeting with a cordial reception at the hands of his friends in this city this week.

Mr. Sidney French returned Thursday evening from a two weeks' visit to his old home in Nebraska and to Springfield, Ill. He leaves next Monday to fill several appointments in Western Kentucky.

Mr. Geo. W. Bain, the grandest temperance orator in the world, accompanied by his wife, passed up the railroad Wednesday evening, en route for Lexington, where he goes for a few days visit to his mother.

Mr. Logan McKee has been confined to his room for a couple of weeks. He was taken ill just in time to be deprived of the pleasure of attending the Y. L. C. C. entertainment last week. He is now rapidly improving, and will be out in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McEwan, of Midway, came down to see their home folks on New Year's day. "Bud" returned the same evening, but left his wife to spend the balance of the week here. She has many friends in this city who are glad to have her among them.

Mrs. Mary G. Pinkston, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Claude Buckley, since last June, left this morning for her home in Mississippi. She has many friends in this city who regret that she cannot make it convenient to take up her permanent abode here.

Mr. Thos. Rodman, jr., advertises a desirable residence for sale in this issue.

Mr. Daniel R. Jones has sold his farm at Jones' Station in this county, to Mr. Milton Craig, of Woodford county, for $75 per acre.

The Telephone cigar is a daisy. If you would enjoy a good smoke, go to the telephone office, corner of Market and Ann streets, and get one.

Dick Higdon has removed his barber shop to the room on Main street, opposite the post-office. He is a good barber and should receive a liberal patronage.

"The Moral Basis of Life" is the subject of Mr. Darsie's discourse for to-morrow morning, at the Christian Church. Usual service at night. All are cordially invited.

We are very glad to be able to state that Mr. William Griffy, the young man accidentally shot by officer Jere Lee, has had the ball extracted from his wound, and is improving rapidly. The physician pronounces him out of danger.

Prof. Guinand, of Louisville, is making excellent crayon portraits of some of our Frankfort people. The portrait of Mr. Milton McGrew, executed by Prof. Guinand, is one of the finest we ever saw. His work is not only good, but very cheap.

If you want to look stylish and feel comfortable at the same time you should lose no time in going to Berberich's Emporium of Fashion, where the nobbiest and best fitting clothes are made of, the best goods for the least amount of money. Go at once, have your measure taken, leave your order with Berberich for a suit of clothes and make your wife or your sweet heart happy.

Officer John Rupe, accompanied by Mr. P. F. Smith, went to the city work-house yesterday morning for the purpose of taking a couple of prisoners to the police court for trial for some petty offence. On entering the cell where a negro ex-convict was confined, they discovered him in a kneeling posture. The prisoner was called to come out, and failing to receive a response, they made an examination, discovering that he was dead. Squire Gwin was at once notified of the fact, and he at once summoned a jury and proceeded to hold an inquest. After a full hearing of the evidence in the case, the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by chronic diarrhea, brought on by exposure and starvation.

Burckhardt has some nice new hams and breakfast bacon which he is selling cheap.

It may be all square and solid as to the capacity of the new reservoir to hold water, but the query propounds itself, what kind of water is it that is collected in its basin? The fact is clearly shown by recent experience that strong rains rapidly supply more water than the basin can discharge through its natural drains. This water is necessarily drift water, carrying leaves, dirt, decaying vegetation and trash into the reservoir. Is it fit to drink? Will it be wholesome? Will not every rain discolor the water in the basin? We do not assert positive views, but we seek information.

A few days ago a countryman stopped in front of Walcutt's store and critically examined the beautiful chromo, "Rock of Ages," in which Faith is represented as clinging to the cross, or, more properly, the Rock of Ages, in mid ocean. While thus engaged, a little negro boy came up and stopped to take a look at the picture, when the countryman accosted him thus: "Say, what's that woman a trying to do?" The little negro said, "She's a trying to git out o' the water." This seemed to partially satisfy the countryman, and he went on his way, wondering, no doubt, how the woman got so far away from land.

Hon. Henry George, State Senator from the first district, has made an astonishing discovery. He claims that the deficiency in the State revenue is caused by the closing of rum shops in counties where local option is in force. Wonder if the learned Senator makes any allowance for the diminished costs to the State for criminal prosecutions in the courts of counties where the local option law prevails. If he does not, he should read the Auditor's reports and see if the amount saved to the State in criminal prosecutions is not greater, by two hundred per cent, than the amount lost to the State revenue by the closing of saloons.

That theory is too thin, Senator. You've let somebody's interest get the better of your discretion.

The opportunity for some enterprising individual to get up a system of telephones for Frankfort is open. By connecting such establishments as the Kentucky River Mills, the saw-mills of Messrs. Archer & Co., Dudley & Bro., Hatchitt, Ziegler & Walcutt, and the distilleries of J. & J. M. Saffell, Jno. Cochran & Co., and E. H. Taylor, jr., Company, and other establishments near the business centre, with a central office, the cost could be greatly cheapened and the facilities of the houses greatly enlarged.

Orders could be sent from the houses to the city, or from one house to another in a moment, and at a great saving of time and trouble. For instance, all arrivals of freight at the depot, all orders for workmen at the mills, all orders for supplies, could be transmitted immediately. Telegraphic dispatches could be repeated over the line. One house could be connected with another for private orders between them. One operator and one office boy would suffice for the central office. A telephone once erected is considered invaluable. Ask Messrs. Macklin and W. A. Gaines & Co. No ordinary sum could buy the lines they have. Will not the Messrs. Williams canvass the project and push the system of telephones to larger benefits?

We are sorry an interesting communication from Capt. R. H. Fitzlugh reached us too late for this issue.

That coal is bought in barges in this city at 14 cents per bushel and sold to consumers at 25 cents creates much talk and dissatisfaction; but when it is known just how the thing works people will, perhaps, not be so much surprised. The dealers pay 14 cents per bushel, of 56 pounds—a quarter of a cents a pound—and have to remove it from the barges to the coal yard. Here it is screened twice—one fourth of it being trash coal, and very unsalable, one fourth nut coal, worth 2 cents less on the bushel than lump coal—and the other half salable lump coal. It is delivered to consumers at 25 cents per bushel, of 76 pounds—one third of a cent per pound, thus affording a profit of one twelfth of cent per pound, or six and a third cents per bushel, which has to cover the expense of moving the coal twice and screening it twice, to say nothing of the loss in trash coal, keeping scales in order, paying rent of coal yard, paying book-keepers, salesmen, weighers, &c. It's a very small profit after all, and our people have little reason to complain.

WEEKLY ROUNDABOUT.

Col. C. E. Bowman, Commissioner of the Agricultural Bureau, has two specimens of Kentucky marble in his office, quarried near Princeton, of rare beauty, and susceptible of the finest polish. They resemble the white granite, and are far more beautiful than anything to be found in our cemeteries.

The twelve inch discharge pipe at the new reservoir is capable of discharging twelve million gallons of water at the reservoir every twenty-four hours, and the same pipe can discharge only one million, six hundred thousand gallons on Main street during the same length of time. This is caused by the resistance of the sides of the pipe to the flow of water.

On the assembling of the House of Representatives Thursday morning, Representative Doneghy, of Boyle county, made a motion that, for the good of the Commonwealth, the House do now adjourn sine die. It was laid on the table of course.

Another shining light in Kentucky politics, Hon. D. G. Mitchell, of Campbellsville, who has the honor of representing the 15th district, composed of the counties of Taylor, Marion, and Washington, in the State Senate, made a motion to dispense with the reading of the Governor's message, as they could read it in the papers. It was very properly ruled out of order.

Representative men should be at least sober and respectable. Common decency should prompt them to be sober, if nothing more. It is a sad commentary on our re-electability and decency, as a people, to note that two Senators, now in the legislative halls, were beastly and disgracefully drunk in their seats during the sessions of the first two days. These two men were noted and commented upon by everyone present—old men, boys, visitors, all felt the blush of shame and disgrace when they looked upon these two Solons asleep in their seats, and wondered at the motive or pride of a constituency who sent such men to the Legislature to publicly disgrace them.

Home again.

The holidays are over and the cadets are again at their posts of duty. The few remaining ones will return within the next week.

Cadet G—— says he has seen the eighth wonder of the world—a sweet Lemon.

There is an epidemic prevailing among the cadets, commonly known as "the blues," and many are heard to give a sigh for "the girl they left behind them."

Card of thanks from the cadets to Y. L. C. C., Prof. Wayland Graham, and Miss Katie Sprout for invitations to entertainments given by them. They were all most enjoyable affairs.

The cadets who remained at Frankfort during the holidays tender their heartfelt thanks to the young ladies and gentlemen of that city for hospitalities shown them.

An Appeal to Those who have Professed Christianity.

Editor Roundabout:
I want to ask the above named class of people of this city a few plain questions.

More than two years ago, through the providence of our kind heavenly Father, the temperance work was inaugurated in our rum-cursed city, under the most favorable circumstances. At that time, when the excitement was at its highest pitch, and it seemed fashionable to be found in the ranks of temperance workers, nearly, if not all, who had put on the armor of their Master and entered His vineyard to do His work, were found first and foremost in the struggle to redeem the fathers, brothers, and sons of our city from the downward course of intemperance to drunkards' graves that they were traveling.

But when the excitement had died away, and the more important and harder work of holding together and encouraging the poor, unfortunate victims of the wine cup, who had, through the persuasions of many of the class of people to whom this article is addressed, abandoned the course of life they had so long pursued, to the detriment of their families, themselves, and their immortal souls, after a time they looked around them for those who were foremost and loudest in calling them to rally around the flag of temperance, and not suffer it to trail in the dust. But at the meetings that have been held regularly every Saturday night, they see no more the faces of those whose words of encouragement and cheer they expected, o help them ward off and battle with the temptations by which they are surrounded in their walks through life.

Now why is it that the very class of people who should take the lead in this work have almost abandoned the cause of temperance, and thereby allowed King Alcohol to have full sway again over the young men of our city? Let me say, right here, that there are a few of the Christian people of our city who have stood by us faithfully in this work.

Throw off your lukewarmness and indifference and come out with us again, good people of Frankfort, and help us carry on this work. We have in days gone by mingled our voices with yours in the old familiar song of "Hold the Fort;" we would now "wave the answer back" to you that we are holding it, but want your re-enforcement, or we must inevitably lose the ground that we have gained in the last two years.

This much I have said to hurt no one's feelings, but simply to let you know what must be done to insure success to our cause.
